Claim Rejections – 35 USC 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

1. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The disclosure as originally filed would not reasonably convey to the artisan that the applicant had possession at that time of a housing with a slot that communicates with the axial bore along its entire length (as recited in claim 2). The specification is silent as to a “slot” for the housing and the only slot that can be discerned from the Figures is labeled generally as element 12 in Figure 2. However, this slot does not extend the entire length of the axial bore as claimed.

Claims Rejections – 35 USC 102

2. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Walrath. Walrath discloses a golf tee setting device comprising a housing (1) having an axial bore and first and second openings and a piston means (6) slidable within the housing, the piston having a first closed end (noted generally at 6) and a second open end for insertion of the golf tee. Note Figures 3 and 4 showing the circular walls. Insofar as the limitation for the slot may be understood, Walrath anticipates the claim language by providing a slot (30) that communicates with the axial bore.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
